Win Bain

Dear Win,

It has been really nice knowing you this year in English and in Latin. Have a good summer and Good luck in all you do.

Jean

Win Bain,
It's been great knowing you this year in Andrew Jones' room. Thanks for all the help you gave me in there. Stay cool remember evil spelled backwards is live.

Win well you "old crow." Don't play too much "gin" this summer. If you go out of the country, go to "Bavaria" but take care of yourself. Don't ever become a "miller's son."

the CLIMB . . . alone . . . together

What is my purpose, my direction, my goal? Alive, I have aims; whether good or bad, easy or difficult, altruistic or selfish, I inevitably lead a life of some purpose. I strive for achievement and fullfillment; I CLIMB.
My goals are my own; what I do is what I do. I am an individual and I continually strive for my identity. In the final analysis, while climbing, I must take the first step and the last. I must find my own self-determination for striving. I am ALONE.
But being gregarious, I cannot cease to associate. I meet an individual; hence, I meet individuals. The effect is profound. Whether I learn to hate him or love him, disrespect him or revere him, hurt him or help him, I am influenced by him. Likewise, my actions affect all. We are TOGETHER.
And so I carry on through 180 days of school, constantly striving alone but together. Our diverse everyday life is depicted in Opening Section (page 1). Academics (page 14) reveals the major concern of CHS and those who lead us through this task. Our many group associations are shown in Organizations (page 38). Athletics (page 82) depicts our team efforts. Those who deserve our special acclaim for individual success are revealed in Features (page 110). In Classes (page 132) our classmates and class highlights are shown. Business Life (page 182) depicts those individual businesses in our everyday life. A conclusion of our individual and group efforts is revealed in the Closing Section (page 236): in all, a brief summary of one more year of schooling.
Alone I have striven; together we have worked —the climb of a TRUCKER.

SALLY SPAIN(opposite), WITH a puzzled expression, attempts to translate a difficult passage in her Latin II (above).

Win,
You a real nice guy. Fun
It's been a fun year in Latin and English and don't forget Miss Porter! Good luck in all you do! Have a great summer.
See ya next year when we'll be great Juniors!

ALONE we strive to find ourselves

Sometimes we feel that we have little importance—a nonentity in a huge mass. Together we do so many things, but we find that the struggle to find ourselves is our own; we search for our identity. Are we popular? Are we attractive? Are we needed? Are we indispensible? But, still, ultimately we are ourselves.

Through education we come to appreciate the thoughts of others and we incorporate them into our beliefs. Our own perception of the world is what we believe to be true or false. Thus, the first step in the climb is finding ourselves, for we cannot understand our environment until we really understand ourselves.

then we find that we are not alone— there is SOMEONE else

During school we seldom are alone. Associations are made everyday. We meet the teacher who guides us through a multitude of knowledge. We make friends who help us in our tasks both physically and mentally. By chance we might meet someone who is special to us and we change our life to please that one. We meet those of special interest whose ways may change ours and enable us to see ourselves better. Each individual might help us or hinder us, love us or hate us, dominate us or serve us, excite us or bore us, praise us or degrade us. Whatever, each individual association influences us, but certain ones aid our climb.

then we associate with a GROUP adding individual effort to a common cause

None of us is completely different from any other. We all have common beliefs and goals. We associate with those who are similar to us; we become part of a group. We contribute our individual ideas and talents to the goals of all, but we must also suppress our personal aims for the good of the group. The group's success is measured by the success of each of us in fulfilling our individual obligation to the group. Likewise, the success of the group adds to our personal success in our similar climbs, as participants in groups of participants.

then we find we are part of a TEAM—striving for the whole forgetting ourselves

Many of us try to make the team—some fail, some succeed, others never surpass the second string. The team provides, even for the spectator, an outlet for forgetting himself in the striving and the hoping for a better team. Individuals struggle for victory for themselves and the team, but we all share in the exultation of victory and the disappointment of defeat. The team teaches us that victory is not always ours and the champions are made through arduous practice, not luck. Thus, the team provides another step in our climb.

Wix,

Remember the Latin banquet — it was really great. I really didn't mind being your slave it was pretty much fun. Good luck —

being one in a multitude, we strive with the MASS

We each slowly strive to find our place in the mass. At times we feel our real identity lost in the many roles we assume trying to find the one that fits. When we do achieve coveted roles in our mass, the student body, we begin to question their importance. We find our personal goals are often not shared by the mass. Our student government finds the difficulty of drawing even less than 1200 persons into one productive group. As graduation draws nearer, we realize the smallness of our secluded mass and the vastness of the mass in which we will continue our climb.

the climb through ACADEMICS:

caught up in a time when education is a foregone conclusion, Truckers have the chance to study material increasing in scope and variety each year. Though individual research and experimentation are increasingly "the order of the day," it is the group that provides incentive to rise above the average.

uninterrupted day, mutual understanding aim of ADMINISTRATION

"The uninterrupted day" was the "improbable dream" for which the administration strove. In his second year, Mr. Galliford emphasized making school life conducive to learning. Innovations included a new program by which seniors could leave school after their classes ended and weekly departmental meetings so that teachers might better solve problems as they arose.
Stressing that good discipline results from mutual understanding, Mr. Belton, the new assistant principal, tried to lessen the communications gap while also assuming the task of scheduling.

school bank (OFFICE) provides tidbits for information seekers

The center of school activity, everybody's door step, the telephone office, the place of final decisions, the human encyclopedia, the school bank, the duplicating center—all aptly describe the general office, the busiest center at CHS. A never-ending stream of information seekers daily pass through the office portals searching for answers or leaving tidbits of information.

microfilm magazines—newest acquisition to LIBRARY facilities

Microfilm magazines enlivened student interest in past periodicals. The acquisition of three microfilm readers and microfilms of magazines through 1960 was the newest addition to our library. Required research in magazines became less of a "chore" to students. Term paper writers soon appreciated Miss Gibb's overnight lending system and her term paper schedule to prevent overcrowding. The addition of the Wall Street Journal, the New York Times, and Woman's Wear Daily brought more interested readers to the newspaper stacks, thus finding new ways to serve all.

GUIDANCE assumes chores of scheduling, tests

"Let's see; if we move sixth period here and first period there, or should it be fourth here and fifth there . . . " Schedule changes were just one of the routines the members of the Guidance Department performed. In addition, they supervised the Differential Aptitude Test, PSAT, and National Merit Test. When these test scores returned, it was the job of the three counselors to help students and parents in interpreting these scores. The Guidance Department was also responsible for the IBM report cards. A college and career orientation program was one of the new objectives that was accomplished. For this, students began in their junior year to make college and job preparation.

ENGLISH students experience flurry of term papers, book reports

Continuing its stress upon literature, the English Department again proceeded to give each student a fundamental knowledge of our literary heritage through classwork and individual reading, not forgetting, however, the importance of grammar. With "activities" including term papers, monthly book reports, a variety of films and records, stimulating classroom discussions, and an endless number of expository essays, students found that maintaining a state of idleness was virtually impossible.

variety of SCIENCE courses help to prepare all chs for "age of aquarius"

The science faculty believes that our nation's greatest resource is the young person and his potential. The Science Department offered a program that was aimed at developing this potential. The program also attempted to provide the student with a background for the future. The department offered such courses as Modern Earth Science, Introductory Physical Science, Physics, Chemistry, and Biology which stressed student participation from experimentation. Such studies enable students to prepare for the "Age of Aquarius."

new books, tutoring, national MATH contest, challenge knowledge of "number nuts"

"Play with it!" Sound like a command to a small child? In reality, it's an all-too-familiar exclamation about "tuff" math problems. These problems caused various complaints from seniors. Innovations in the Math Department included a triplet of new teachers. Also, students found themselves puzzled by terminology presented by new books. Advanced math students received a chance to test their tutoring abilities by helping other pupils. In the spring, a National Math Contest enabled students to further test their knowledge, in relation to national standards.

attempting to adapt to needs of students, social studies GROUPS students according to ability

The Social Studies Department, starting with the concrete in underclassman studies and building up to concepts and forces in the more advanced classes, stressed the inter-relationship between courses throughout its program. The department offered special courses in social studies, such as psychology. In an attempt to adapt to the needs of the student and his development, the department for the first time experimented with grouping students according to ability.

world interdependence, cultures revealed through foreign LANGUAGES

Gratias tibi ago, muy bien, bonjour, ami and auf wedersehn all became accepted sayings in the halls. This came as a result of more than fifty per cent of the student body being enrolled in foreign languages. Tapes, word games, pictures, and other devices were used for a better understanding of the language and for enlarging the knowledge of foreign cultures. Through their studies, students were able to realize more and more our interdependence on foreign countries.

INTRAMURAL sports take on increased emphasis in gym classes

"Will anyone interested in either girl's or boy's intramurals please sign up in the appropriate gym by the end of school today?" Such announcements, along with posters, helped to focus the students' attention to the program of intramural sports. Amazing numbers of students participated in such sports as tennis, table tennis, horseshoes, basketball and football; most of these were for both girls and boys. The success of the program was due to both new equipment and good supervision. The sports further served to carry out the department's purpose in physical training through individual and team effort.

students display TALENTS through musicals, art

Oboe or trombone, paint brush or clay, song or musical—all became means of learning for students in the Fine Arts Department including band, art and chorus. Whether learning to express themselves through music or art, students shared their skills with others through concerts, in hall art shows, at football games, and by visiting other locales to show the results of practice. Perhaps the most "showy" part of CHS, the Fine Arts Department let the community see and hear first hand CHS sharing with others.

chs achieves distinction of only state MARINE rotc

A first for CHS! The Marine ROTC instituted this year was unique in Virginia by being the only one in a high school in the state and only one of twenty-five units in the country. Composed of boys 14 years or older, the ROTC program develops informed citizens, strengthens character, develops an understanding of one's military responsibility, and promotes marine corps careers. Stressed were military techniques and drill. Thus the unfamiliar sound of "hup-two-three-four" gradually became the familiar as did the uniformed cadets in every class.

dexterity gained in MANUAL ARTS

All under one roof—this statement again applied to Manual Arts as shop classes were moved from the stadium classroom back to the old shop. With new instruments such as the lathe and welding equipment for acetylene work, boys spent hours making record racks, shelving funnels, and benches. In home economics, girls found that units on clothing enabled them to make their own clothes and that pre-prepared foods were no replacement for dishes made from "scratch". Mechanical drawing students drew up house plans and orthographic drawings and did blue printing with the familiar T-square and various drawing instruments.

Blink, blink, blink go the little lights of the new electronic calculator of the Business Department. The department again offered such varied courses as clerical office training, general business, shorthand, and basic corporate law. The Gregg Company again issued speed awards for proficiency in shorthand. Awards were also presented for efficiency in the use of various machines.

student-administration communication: theme stressed through SCA

"We can work it out" was the theme of the SCA as members tackled school problems. Emphasizing better student-administration communication, the council took up such major issues as a new alma mater and reports of drug abuse at C.H.S. The SCA supported both The White House Conference on Children and Youth, which was held at Churchland, and A Presidential Classroom For Young Americans. Other projects included a homecoming spirit weekend dance, and bermuda day.

"Will the welfare representatives bring their canned goods to the main hall now?" "Each homeroom representative is reminded to poll his homeroom this morning." These were the announcements heard periodically over the PA. The welfare projects were headlined by the sending of Xmas stockings to Viet Nam War veterans at the Naval Hospital, continuance of the adopted child and the Red Cross Blood Drive. projects, and Thanksgiving drive in which CHS doubled its quota by filling 41 baskets of food for needy area families. Homeroom representatives, besides getting down to the real nitty-gritty of solving student body problems, assisted in several receptions.

unjustified right margins ease pains of frustration in copy writing for TRUCKER staff

"This copy is dead, try again!" was the verdict the adviser, doubling as copy editor, gave to many frustrated staff members as they tried to write copy. Unjustified right margins made adjusting sentences into copy blocks easier, but the writing was still difficult. The rising cost of publishing the Trucker made necessary the increase in the price, even though $2,300 was collected in ads. Trying to improve the book, the staff sought to try new—and hopefully—better ways. New ways included replacing the student life section with an opening selection and adding an ending section in an effort to better carry out the editorial plan. Endless hours were spent carrying through these new ideas, writing headlines, cropping pictures, writing captions, and rushing to meet deadlines—the making of a Trucker.

NEWSPAPER adds gossip column that "tells it like it is??"

Many eager students plus much hard work equal a monthly newspaper—the formula for the Trucker Topics. Editorials, sports, organization news, and other bits of information made up the newspaper. A new feature was the senior column, where all of the latest morsels of gossip could be found. The Trucker Topics staff sponsored the Student Forum at which questions pertaining to school life could be asked. The staff then attempted to answer their questions in the paper. With an eye open for any newsworthy event, the "junior journalists" acted as reporters in relaying all of the school's functions, news and events in each of the eight monthly issues.

delighted cries during excited moments prove to all LATIN scholars that latin lives!

"Latin is NOT dead! LATIN IS ALIVE TODAY!" These are often-heard cries from Hodierni Romani of CHS. Their daily task is difficult, but their rewards are great. They are neither plebeians nor patricians, but "Latini Discipuli". Their sole purpose was devoted to fun and games. Excitement was increased during Saturnalia with a visit from Sanctus Romanus and the exchanging of presents. Students had a chance to display their artistic ability in making valentines for "All Saints Day". The year was climaxed by the banquet including wrestling, skits, and plenty of food. It also served as a stimulus for all "slaves" to become "citizens" and gain the privilege of being waited on.

programs, parties promote FRENCH language, culture while providing fun, relaxation

Ah! Food, food, food—quenelles de brochet, pommes de terre au gratin, et quiche lorraine were all part of the French Club's "diner fortune de pot", the year's big event. A wide variety of tasty dishes was brought by those who attended. Also of interest was Mr. Galliford's talk on French chateaux augmented by the use of slides. A program at which Norman and Nathan Goldin spoke on their summer trip to France was most enlightening. The Christmas party including bingo, carols, and the story from the Bible, all in French, added to the spirit of the holiday. This great variety of activities helped to promote the French language and gave the students an added insight into the everyday life of France.

GERMAN scholars enrich study of language through insight into culture

Float plans and construction launched Der Deutsche Verein to a busy start. For the first time the German Club entered the Homecoming float competition with a German rendition of Hansel and Gretal. Various money making projects kept the club active during the year. Keeping the purpose of the club, "to enrich the study of the German language by an introduction to German life and culture," in mind, members planned various programs. A German-style banquet at the end of the year highlighted the club's limited activities and brought to an end this club's short life.

educational fun sets theme for SPANISH CLUB

Fun coupled with education headed the agenda for the Spanish Club. With programs concerning some Spanish-speaking country or some phase of Spanish life, the club rededicated itself to stimulating the students' interest in the Spanish culture by making the subject enjoyable and entertaining. Highlighting the first semester was the entering of a homecoming float and the annual Christmas fiesta, celebrated in true Spanish style. Climaxing the year was a banquet held in the spring.

"gladys gross" helps to extend CHARM, grace

"Hey—ya'll," began the business of the etiquette-minded Pierette Club at its monthly meeting. The thirty senior girls were chosen to extend courtesy, charm, and grace throughout the school. This aim was carried out by a dress-up day each month and their highlight of the year, the presentation of the "Gladys Gross" skit at an assembly. Other activities included caroling at Christmas, and aiding an underprivileged family. In the spring an old-fashioned hayride was held.

pep club enthusiasm sparks school SPIRIT

With unfaltering effort, the Pep Club went about its activities with an enthusiasm capable within itself to spark the school and its athletic teams to spirit and pep. As for this year, the club entered a float entitled "Winnie the Pooh" in the homecoming parade. In addition to hall signs, the boosters for the first time made spirit tags for the wrestling and track teams during the winter. Also, tags for the baseball, outdoor track, golf and tennis teams added a bit of incentive to end a busy schedule for the CHS Spirit Society.

discussions, films, tours— scope of BIBLE CLUB

"The Bible is a real thing. We want it to have true meaning in our lives." So spoke the president of the Bible Club. Through films, speakers, projects, tours, discussions, and prayer, the club strived to gain a better understanding of the Bible and its meaning. During the middle of the year, the group went for a tour of the Christian Broadcasting Network and met such people as Jim and Tammy. They also visited the Naval hospital in hope of cheering up the patients. Guest speakers added a personal touch to the club as its members gained insight from the Bible, and tried to apply it to their daily lives.

santa enlivens HEMBY'S party for little girl

Busy, busy, busy describes the many activities of Connie Hemby Tri-Hi-Y. Playing football at the Boy's Home, entertaining at the Emily Green Nursing Home, and caroling at an area hospital were just samples of the varied service projects undertaken. The Christmas party held for an underprivileged girl was livened by the visit of Santa. Bunny Sisters exchanged useful and unusual gifts. The club again sponsored the annual "Miss Trucker" Contest. In the spring the Mother-Daughter Banquet was held at which new officers were installed and special "honor" awards were presented.

stationery sale constitutes contribution to CHURCHLAND community service

"Who's got my printed informals? I got someone's envelopes." was heard as Churchland Tri-Hi-Y officers distributed stationery during their major money-making project of the year. The proceeds from this sale were sent as the club's contribution to the Joy Fund for underprivileged children. These civic-minded girls donned costumes for a Halloween visit to the Maryview Children's Ward as well as provided a Thanksgiving meal for two needy families. The year ended in fine style with the selection of Mr. and Miss School Spirit and the annual Miss Churchland Contest.

CEM serves community by cards to servicemen, child opportunity project

By helping underprivileged children, Cem members began their service projects with active participation in the child opportunity program. Donations of canned goods and money gave a needy family a happy Thanksgiving. Christmas arrived and Cem brightened the holiday by sending cards to the military overseas. Cold afternoons in January saw them collecting for the Mother's March of Dimes. For fun, a fun pot luck dinner was held in December; at Easter many laughs were heard with the exchange of novelties from Bunny Sisters. Along with other tri-hi-y's, Cem held a fund raising sale.

Cinderella floats to first place at HOMECOMING

"We won!" This was the exclamation among Perrecta Tri-Hi-Y members on many occasions throughout the year. At homecoming the members were overjoyed with their first place float. They strove diligently to win the Ace Award for the fifth year. They achieved this through varied service projects including helping a family at Christmas. Sweet sales helped to finance their charitable projects. Several parties provided both time and talent for their endeavors. A mother-daughter banquet ended the year with the installation of new officers.

adopting family— major project of WEBB

"Won't you please send a mouse to college? It only costs twenty-seven cents." was the frequent request of members of Webb Tri-Hi-Y. The girls were working to send mice to college to be used in cancer research. Adopting a fatherless family for Christmas and Thanksgiving was Webb's other major service project. They gave the mother, three children, and grandmother Thanksgiving dinner, Christmas dinner, clothes, Christmas presents, a tree, and decorations to go with it. Social "get-togethers," pajama parties, and a Christmas party were Webb's "fun" projects. Their annual fashion show in the spring provided funds to finance their activities and projects.

SUCCEDO brings "good cheer" to hospital patients

Pillow fights, snacks, and long talks into the wee hours of the morning were first on the agenda as Succedo Tri-Hi-Y returned to school with pajama parties galore! Christmas arrived and Succedo members helped to brighten the holiday spirit and spread cheer to the patients of the Viet Nam Ward at the Naval Hospital with caroling and refreshments. The year reached a climax with a dramatic production in which all benefits went to charity. Succedo members closed the season by planning a two week stay at Virginia Beach during the summer, a fitting climax to a gay, productive year.

GIFT of tree helps spread christmas joy

Money-making schemes, pledge periods, and service projects highlighted the year for members of Dick Shea Hi-Y. Under the leadership of President Ronnie Psimas, these boys filled the first semester with the semi-annual ritual of pledging, selling doughnuts, a turkey raffle, and the donation of the Christmas Tree to the school. During the second semester, the members were kept busy selling wind breakers and having another pledge period. Throughout the year, the club stressed service to the community and the creation of Christian fellowship within the club.

HI-Y'S gifts give shut-ins a merry christmas

"A disaster! Tradition has been broken! We should have won!" This was a familiar cry heard by all members of Truckers Hi-Y as their homecoming float on "Peter Pan" failed to place among the three winners as in previous years. However, this one event did not stop them from trying to be first in community and school service. T-shirts displaying the name and colors of the school were sold at large to the students. Also, the teacher door tags from the previous year were renovated. The greatest community asset came with the giving of Christmas gifts to the disabled servicemen at the Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

young SCIENTISTS gain knowledge by field trips, projects

Science projects and fairs were the main interests of the Scientific Society. As many projects as possible were entered in competition in the Tidewater Science Congress and the Virginia Junior Academy of Science. The club's membership included those of the merger of the Science Club and the Scientific Society. There were speakers and slides and films pertaining to science. Also field trips to various places of interest were made. All of which stimulated those interested in the subject and those interested in competition with other schools as well as providing fun for all concerned.

MEDICAL club volunteers greatly appreciated

Volunteer work done by the Medical Club students at Maryview Hospital was greatly appreciated by both the personnel and patients there. Since the club members are interested in various medical careers, they found the work both educational and rewarding. The members expressed particular interest in certain areas such as the Emergency Room and the X-ray Department. Less serious work included running errands for patients and conversing with them, which they seemed to enjoy more than the patients themselves. Due to the many rewards of this work, many members planned to continue in it.

ART appreciation adds culture to students' lives

Art Club members decided to spread appreciation for the arts throughout the school, so that each one of the students could add a bit of culture to his life. Each month two bulletin boards were designed from new ideas centering around school life. Trying to increase club funds, members undertook a new project of selling an arrangement of ribbon and mistletoe at Christmas. Due to Truckerette response, a little more mistletoe than ribbon was used.

through projects, small FTA honors teachers

"The best things come in little packages"—an appropriate saying for the FTA. Though small in number, the members found much to which they could devote their time. The week before Homecoming, they could be found in the homerooms, busily selling mums. The FTA baked cookies for the teachers during American Education Week and decorated the teachers' lounges for Christmas. Each month, the FTA chose a teacher of the month as an "outstanding" teacher. Their year was highlighted with a spring tea for the teachers.

stable home life—goal of FHA

Doing, seeing, hearing, serving enjoying—five words that aptly describe the year's work of FHA. After entering a "Pinocchio" float at Homecoming, the girls hired a bus for a trip to Richmond for a day of fun. With a trip to the Manning Convalescent Home at Christmas to carry presents and entertain and a trip to the Naval Hospital in the spring, these future homemakers thus brought a little sunshine to the patients. With programs on the March of Dimes, alcohol in home life, and welfare and juvenile delinquency, the girls were better able to carry out the state goal of "A Stable Home, A Stable Life".

MONOGRAMERS' initiation all fun

"Okay pledges—over here! Now everybody join hands and skip around the cafeteria!" Thus Monogram Club members began the year with the fun of initiating new members. "Would you like to buy a program Only a quarter." A familiar question put to football fans as Monogram members sponsored the selling of programs at the games. Officiating for intramural sports was also a part of the "monogrammer's" job. The high point of the season was a rollicking game against the faculty.

Decked out in green-stained tennis shoes and wet t-shirts, Varsity C pledges received the full brunt of initiation as they eagerly mowed lawns and washed cars for the club's older members. Open to any CHS letterman, the club, minus regular officers, recognizes achievement in all sports. Using the big brother approach, older members were afforded the opportunity to "guide and counsel" initiates and in turn to receive "tokens of appreciation" from them. With the ordering of Varsity C jackets, all members proudly displayed their hard-earned honors that set them apart as the courtmen, runners, matmen, pigskin carriers, linksmen, and diamond men of the Truckers.

"opportunity unlimited!" — slogan of DE

"Opportunity unlimited!" This was the adopted slogan of the DE Club as the thirty members carried out activities with the practical training and experience of their own jobs. Besides their work in the classroom, in the club, and on the job the members found time to sponsor a tutorial program at the Boys Home and to provide a "coffee-donut hour" for the faculty during American Education Week. To highlight the year, they helped to liven up the school halls and to get CHS students in the Christmas spirit with the annual door decoration contest.

To provide vocational training opportunities for youth and to create in the student the desire to further his education in his vocational field: these were the objectives of the newly-renamed VICA Club. ". . . and MUSIC fills the air!"— choruses spend year with joyous harmonies of song

With voices blending in songs old and new, some 150 members of the five choruses spent a year filled with music, music, music. Taking their cue from the Lancaster "Sing Along" in the fall, the singers found that the Lion's Club benefit show and their annual Christmas concert only whetted appetites for the song fests of the second semester. Spurred on by many new and tuneful songs, all the songsters gave glowing performances in the spring musical as well as in-school functions, the Lancaster Waterfont Concert, and their annual spring concert. As such, music did fill the air as voices swelled together in the harmonies of joyous song.

VILLAGERS entertain near, far as musical ambassadors

The fifth anniversary of the forming of the Villagers was marked with much change. First, the size of the group was enlarged to eighteen. Extensive trips were made to Richmond and Alexandria, while local engagements included appearances before the Ruritan, Kiwanis, Lions, and Women's Clubs, the Lions Club Variety Show, and their performance in all choral concerts and assemblies. Thus performing, the Villagers assumed the role of official musical ambassadors from CHS and afforded all their listeners a program of up-to-date music.

BAND keeps feet tapping with outside practice in fall

"For a seventy-five piece band they sure do have a big sound," remarked a first period teacher while trying to get the class's attention. This went on for some time as the band members practiced and practiced for football game after football game. Meanwhile, in the classrooms, feet were heard tapping and pencils were keeping time with the lively beat. The band added extra spark to the football season by playing for pep rallies, leading cheers, and entertaining at halftime. But, after football season passed, the band didn't stop. They were heard after school "blowing horns, beating drums, and clanging cymbals." These sessions enabled the band to take part in many community parades. They delighted the student body by presenting a Christmas assembly which featured old favorites of the mistletoe season.

PARENTS raise $$ for trip, uniforms

During December, the band parents, who take an active interest in the band, sponsored a miscellaneous sale. They sold such items as greeting cards, wrapping paper, stationery, candles, and almost anything imaginable. This added extra money to the band treasury which is going to be used for the annual spring trip and in a few years for new uniforms. As one member commented, "When you join the band, all of your time is devoted to it."; with such in mind, eleven members were rewarded for this by being selected for the all-regional band.

"WE UPSET CRADOCK." This quote seemed to make the entire Churchland football season worthwhile as this win gave the Truckers a 2-8 record; yet, for many, beating Cradock was such a perfect ending for the season that they enjoyed discussing their 1-0 season.

Though victory was not often enjoyed, Deep Creek, Granby, Norfolk Catholic and Oscar Smith were spirited contests which all proved to be exciting outings as the Truckers gave each opponent a hearty battle.

JUNIOR TRUCKERS, made up largely of eighth graders, suffer winless season

Losing, yet still retaining high morale and spirit, was a victory of mental attitude that was mastered by the Junior Varsity Football Team. This, being just as important as winning, drove the team on as they met every new opponent with eagerness and desire.

brightly clad CHEERLEADERS charge churchland

Spirited Truckers really became "charged up" when the cheerleaders did their "rahs" and "rays" in new, orangish, short uniforms. Summertime fun was devoted to the collection of bottles, bake sales, a car wash, and gathering of newspapers in order to raise money for the new "charge." Through all of the excitement, the cheerleaders still managed time to make player tags, hall signs, and perform in pep rallies each week. A little something extra such as, giving cupcakes, pep swatters, and pumpkins filled with candy to team members on the day before the game added that extra spirit boost, and the desire to upend their opponent.

versatile GYMNASTS enter rigid competition with rules governing olympics

Entering into its second year of competition, the gymnastic team added more prestige and uniqueness to the athletic program. These twenty-five young women competed at two levels, the Amateur Athletic Union and in Virginia High School meets. Practice year round prepared these girls for the rigid competition in the spring in which they were subject to the same rules that governed the Olympics. They participated in events, such as, the uneven parallel bars, vaulting, tumbling, free exercise, tumbling and the balance beam. An outstanding May Day climaxed a years hard work.

MARATHONERS outdistance rivals bruins, prexies

The "super loop" was no easy road for the Cross Country Team as they frequently trotted the seven and a half miles in preparation for meets. As a result of their readiness, the Trucker marathoners were victorious in their final meet over Oscar Smith which pushed them past the .500 mark. Under the leadership of Lance Myers and the strong running of Tim Raulerson, the marathoners boosted their record to 5-4, including rivals Wilson and Western Branch.

tenacious rebounding, powerful scoring combo earns PEARSON all-district honors

Ranking third in district scoring and a top rebounder, Lee Pearson along with the ball handling of Vernon Elliott provided the spark that ignited the varsity courtmen to a 6-4 district record and an 11-7 overall season. The Truckers, using a zone defense, were the second leading defensive team in the district. Difficult wins over Crestwood, Cradock and Wilson proved very satisfying. The team pulled a mild upset when they defeated highly-talented Great Bridge during the tournament, and then they lost by only five points to district champions Kennedy.

through determination, jvs equal BEST season ever with 14-4 record

Displaying a productive offense and a tenacious defense, the Trucker J.V.'s matched the 14-4 record of the best season for a Junior Varsity team. Driven by an overpowering spirit, the team always presented an exciting display of desire and most of the time they were rewarded by victory. With the experience of veterans from last year's team, the Truckerettes had a well-balancd attack which proved worthy of a winning season. Melody Sparks, Peggy Lynch, and Gay Williamson, tri-captains, all contributed in accumulating the team's record of nine wins and five losses.

SODERQUIST sets school pole vault record

Despite strength in the pole vault and the shot put, the indoor track team ran up a disappointing 1-3-1 record. Bobby Soderquist set a new school record in the pole vault with a jump of 11' 9" and placed third in the district meet. Curtis Tyler and Mike Gutzler provided 49 and 41 points respectively. It was natural to see hall hurdlers and sprinters as they took to the indoors during the winter. With a young team and with weakness in distance events, all meets were lost by close scores.

HARMON takes first state wrestling title at chs— sets national high school record

A state wrestling champion from CHS? They said it couldn't be done. But Danny Harmon amazed wrestling fans as he became Churchland's first state champion and set a national high school record with 23 consecutive pins. The team was victorious in 11 of 13 dual matches. In the first annual district tournament, the matmen secured the Southeastern District title with five individual champions. They took the third place trophy in the Eastern Region with two regional champs and finished fourth in state competition.

albertson's arm aids in earning 6-1-8 for '69 BASEBALL

The 1969 season brought a 6-1-8 record to the baseball team. Led by Lynn Tarkenton and Ronnie Albertson in the pitching department; Terry Rivenbark, Joe Carrol, Ricky Richardson, and Tom Weatherford in the fielding; and Richardson and Weatherford in the batting, the team vied against tough competition. Promising potential for the '70 season included Steve Tuttle, Ricky Stephenson, and Steve Wilson. With Coach Collins in his second year, and with the experience of veterans Albertson and Rivenbark, the team felt that an improvement was possible.

Lack of depth in most events resulted in a poor showing for the '69 trackmen. Although the track team took many first places, they failed to take second and third places. Besides being extremely strong in the shot and discus events, Caleb Powell took firsts in the sprints and jumps while Paul Reitz in the distance added points with his versatility.

win over wilson, second place in district bring '69 NETMEN honors

The cliche"We try harder"aptly fit the '69 tennis team as they finished second in the district with a 7-1 record. With only one loss, the season was highlighted by a strong 7-2 win over Wilson. Mr. Lemasters, the coach, kept a constant watch on the team. Ben Edwards was a standout by being undefeated in singles throughout the season.

The '70 team looked toward being "second to none" in district play as singles Ben Edwards and the doubles team of Edwards and Roger Allen were outstanding among competition.

'69 GOLFERS keep district dominance

The 1969 golf team was not "puttering around" when they captured the fifth consecutive district championship. The Truckers outscored their opponents by a total of 60 points to 12 points in all their district matches, including two shutouts. Grant Parker proved to be the major district threat by grabbing low medalist in the district championship.

The '70 golf team undertook the task of preserving CHS district dominance. With only one returning letterman, the team found strength in underclassmen.

senior SUPERLATIVE honors give class of '70 chance to choose it's "best"

Achievement in high school is attained in many ways—sports, academics, organizations. Recognition for this achievement is also bestowed in several ways—sports letters, scholarships, and various special awards. Senior Superlatives, though, attain a special sort of recognition. Elected at large from the Senior Class by their peers, they are the ones their classmates consider "the best." A result of long acquaintances, these Superlative selections signify the Class of 70's final choice of "greatest."

leadership, scholarship, character, service—criteria for selection of 20 N.H.S. seniors

Speculation, surprise, delight, reward—all were terminated by the selection of twenty juniors for membership in the National Honor Society during their senior year. Selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship, service, and character, the members with a new sponsor continued the organization's policy of service to school and of offering a scholarship to one of its members at graduation. Selling drinks at the musical provided funds for this scholarship. With spring, at its assembly, Churchland's honored twenty selected its new members from the upcoming seniors. Thus an ending and a beginning occurred at the same time—as happens every year.

MARSHALS enter second decade as top junior echelon

Certainly one of the busiest and most active groups at Churchland, the 1970 Marshals continued to carry out the group's traditional tasks as well as perform ones more recently vested. The most frequent job was monitoring the halls daily during lunch. As official hosts and hostesses for the school, the Marshals ushered for open house, chorus and band concerts, and the musical and helped to seat students at assemblies. With Mr. Gatling as advisor and Sherry Buchanan as Chief Marshal, the Marshals strove to uphold standards befitting this high honor.

these we HONOR: those students willing to put forth that special effort to achieve

For every area of endeavor in high school, there are honors for outstanding achievement. Through sports, scholastics, special talents, and school and community service, students can become involved and participate in groups, but few individuals make outstanding accomplishments. Awards at the school, local, state and national levels honor those who are willing to make that special effort, and it is these we honor who bring recognition both to themselves and to the school.

the class of '70

The opening of school marked the beginning of a new decade of seniors; however, little more had changed. Again seniors assumed the position of leadership in all phases of school life. Along with this leadership, the class of '70 became an organization second only to the SCA in power, and second to none in prestige. School pride and the desire to improve the school was evidenced by the formation of a senior lunchroom "orchestra" which provided first lunch students with a bit of cultural "music to dine by." Class spirit was further boosted by numerous "senior days", which were accompanied by special senior privileges, and by the powder puff football game. Preparations for graduation accented the second semester. Finally graduation came, marking the end of a long personal climb for 186 seniors and the end of a climb for an organization: The Class of 1970.

the climb alone . . . a JUNIOR, the climb together . . . the class of '71

Juniors, lower upperclassmen, Class of '71—many ways of saying only one year to go! Juniors took full advantage of that last year before reaching the top of the ladder. With the privileges of being upperclassmen, came responsibilities and decisions . . . "What color ring did you choose? I can't decide between topaz and ruby." (A familiar cry in late September as rings were displayed and orders taken) . . . "Okay, who can sell five dozen donuts this weekend? Our treasury is low." (A familiar question heard in homerooms as the money-making projects got under way for the Junior-Senior funds.) Along with the duties came more opportunities to participate in the traditional sports events of varsity football, basketball, cheering, and the annual Powder Puff game which provided athletic diversion from daily studies. Juniors showed great school support on Spirit Day with crazy hats and socks. Responsibilities, decisions, athletic participation, fun—all the ingredients that helped make '70 a memorable year for Juniors.

Science projects, research papers, tests, "wet runs," book reports and multitudes of assignments confronted sophomores from the start. From September to June, the sophs were faced with a never-ending flow of work. As a result of detention, parent-teacher conferences and counselling from the guidance personnel, the school grounds were cleared of all litter, parents got a better understanding of their child's grades, and the "wise fools" planned their futures. Amid a flurry of happenings, the sophomores still found time for many extra curricular activities. They were well-represented in the chorus, band, and many clubs. The class of '72 supported their alma mater by wearing orange and black crepe paper bow ties on Sophomore Day and by selling yellow spirit links for the spirit chain. Through the many burdens and anxieties, the sophomores managed to get one step closer to graduation—with deep sighs of relief.

the climb alone . . . a FRESHMAN the climb together . . . the class of '73

The yardstick crashed onto the podium splitting it in two. Laughter followed. The President slipped on a piece of chalk. Again laughter followed. But was that all the Freshmen were—a group of clumsy, carefree joksters? Although seniors seemed to think so, the Class of '73 was as individualistic as any class that had come along. After all, not many classes have dreamed of having the Supremes play at their Freshman-Sophomore or of washing a Boeing 707 Jet! These may be things of the near or distant future (looking quite far away), but the Freshmen worked on several projects. They had a thriving Tootsie Roll ghost sale which added $30.75 to the class treasury and during basketball season sold spirit tags. Between these and the class dues, the treasurer could no longer add up the money on her hands. With getting their first real taste of being full-fledged Truckers (having been lowly eighth graders last year)—the Freshmen anxiously cast their eyes to becoming upper-lower classmen.

the climb alone . . . an EIGHTH GRADER the climb together . . . the class of '74

Despite being the leftovers of the school system, the eighth graders became obvious innovators. The class proved this by electing a girl as president and a boy as treasurer. This is a combination that CHS hasn't seen in a quarter of a century. They also chose two sponsors; one female and one male to benefit from the viewpoints of each gender. The class of '74 led the girl's J.V. Basketball Team with a majority on the squad. The treasury was started with $26.40 made at a bake sale at Zayre. The language clubs saw many new faces this year, most of them belonging to eighth graders who added their own special "thing." By the end of the year, things so changed that these lowest of lower classmen assumed a status all their own taking a giant leap to the first rung of the ladder . . . alone, yet together.

Come see the making of power

Vepco's first commercial atomic power station is now under construction in Surry County, Virginia. In the new Information Center overlooking the site, you will see an excellent slide presentation, fascinating exhibits, and a working model of the reactor. (And from the balcony, you can watch them assemble the real thing.) Open 10 AM to 4 PM Monday through Saturday and 1 PM to 6 PM on Sunday. For tour information call 771-3194 in Richmond.

1970 TRUCKER LEADERSHIP Kenny Kastner—editar-in-chief, Mr. Rabert Moore—advisor, Jimmy Margan—business manager, Linda Crandall—editar-in-chief.

production of 1970 TRUCKER involves hours of writing, picture-taking, ad collecting, selling "From little acorns do giant oaks grow." Though a time-honored saying, this expression aptly describes the 1970 Trucker and the 18 members that worked from March, 1969 through March, 1970 in order to give a picture and word study of Churchland High. Beginning with a simple idea of preserving memories, 5 new staff members, and 13 veteran staffers, an adviser of 12 years standing, and an overwhelming desire to put in untold hours of work, the staff quickly decided on its editorial plan. Next came the summer task of ad collecting; thanks to the support of area businessmen, the Trucker was assured of financial stability. In September came the pleasant task of cover design; the result was a hard back cover done in 3 colors with a stylized design depicting everybody's climb towards a goal. The choice of paper stock (100 lb. dull enamel), the headline type (24 pt. News Gothic Bold), and the print style (12 pt. Metrolite with Bold for copy and 8 pt. for captions) helped the staff catch a small glimpse of the finished product. With the arrival of the dummy, the staff quickly gave its approval to the contemporary design which concentrated on large pictures, consistent vertical and horizontal spacing, and a new concept of capitalizing only the most important word in each headline. With the annual subscription drive, some 771 books were sold. With the use of a Polaroid camera, a 35 mm. Yashica, and a 4 x 5 press camera, the student photographers set out snapping pictures of all phases of school life. With senior pictures taken by Smith and Welton's, club and class pictures taken by Mr. Jim Saine of Delmar Studios, and sports and classroom pictures taken by Mr. Richard Bruckse, adequate pictorial coverage of school life was assured. As days wore into weeks, the deadlines of December 4, January 19, Feruary 14 ,and March 25 were found to come all too quickly for harried staffers. As the galleys and proofs came back from Hunter Publishing Company, a feeling of anticipation and excitement was generated among the staff. With constructive criticism from Mr. John Perry of Hunter, the staff day in and day out appreciated his comments more and more, his layouts, and his encouraging advice. With the arrival of May 22, the books were distributed to the eager student body. Thus the staff realized the fruits of its year's work—just in time for the new staff, already involved in work on the 1971 Trucker, to see what improvements might be incorporated into the 28th volume.

we find that our ASSOCIATIONS have been invaluable

Whether we have associated with the individual, the group, the team, or the mass, each association has influenced our climb. We have made both friend and foe. We altered our lives to please and impress those whom we especially respect. Our personal leadership and talents were enhanced by participation in groups. Through teamwork we strove for goals more important than our own. Moreover, in the mass we continued to do our best, however small, for that multitude in which we sometimes lost our identity. In the final analysis, we were products of our associations—a part of the whole.

the CLIMB . . . together . . . alone

We have seen our school in action. We have met people and their activities. We have labeled each of us a Trucker, but we must also label each of us an individual. Even though we have worked together, we are left with ourselves. Our thoughts and beliefs have been greatly formed by the influence of our associations, but still we have chosen what to believe. Often we have been denied acceptance and approval by our teachers, by certain cliques, or by that special someone; we are left with ourselves as our only solace. These are the times that we discover ourselves and we are glad that we have retained our individuality in a world of conformity and uniformity. And so, with renewed spirit and a determination spurred on by past accomplishments and hopes of future success, we strive to fulfill our own goals—we climb, in many instances together, but ultimately alone.

june 10 brings end to a BEGINNING

Whether together or alone, we have all experienced a climb. We noted the constant effort in ourselves, the microcosm, or in our school, the macrocosm. And so, our year ends. Hopefully we have become a little more learned, a little wiser, a little better prepared for the future, because our existence does not end with this year. Many of us will be returning to CHS to begin another and a more arduous step in our climb. Many of us, having had sufficient preparation in high school, will set new goals in college or in future careers. Whatever the case, we have just begun our overall climb, and without the sturdy steps of CHS our success is, at best, dubious. The success or failure of our climb has been ours and will be ours, for we are masters of our fate. We now descend the steps of CHS, ready to ascend new steps—together, alone—but always as a TRUCKER.

Win,

We finally made it through Miss Porter's class and it sure has been an "experience". The year was highlighted by all our "group" work and all our discussions. You made it through History this year and I hope Claude is in your History class ~~next~~ year.

Barbara
